Judge Brace Accepts.

By resolution of the Democratic state convention a committee of three, consisting of Chas. H. Mansur, John A. Hockaday and James O. Broadhead, was appointed to inform Judge Brace of his nomination as candidate for supreme judge and to ask his acceptance of the same. The letter of Judge Brace in answer to the communication addressed to him by the committee, reads as follows:

PARIS, Mo., Aug. 30.—Hon. Charles Mansur, Hon. John A. Hockaday and Hon. James O. Broadhead: GENTLEMEN—Your letter of the 19th inst., advising me of my nomination by the Democratic state convention for the office of judge of the supreme court, has been received.

With feelings of profound gratitude to the great party, of which I have been a member during all the days of my manhood, and with a deep sense of the responsibilities of the position, I accept the high honor conferred, and should the action of the convention meet with the approval of the people of the commonwealth at the ensuing election I hope, by a concentration of all the powers and energies of my nature to that end, to so discharge the duties of the office, that no citizen may have cause to regret that the lot fell on me rather than upon another, perhaps more deserving.

The declaration of principles adopted by the convention is in accord with my political convictions, but any extended consideration of them at this time by one who, by the action of the convention, has been set apart for a field of labor where political affiliations and partisan zeal can have no place, would be not only supererogatory, but unbecoming. To know the law (the same law for every citizen of the state), and fearlessly to declare it—without prejudice or partiality—is the simple measure of the duties of the arduous and responsible position for which the convention has done me the honor to name me, and should this high trust be confided to me, I hope, God helping me, to so administer it as to detract from the just claim that highest judicial tribunal has, and ought to have, upon the confidence and respect of every good citizen of the state. Yours most respectfully, THORNDIKE BRACE.

Gored to Death.

W. C. Williams, a thrifty farmer and well-to-do citizen of Cook settlement in St. Francois county, well known to many in this place, died Monday morning after suffering untold pain from injuries inflicted the Friday before by an enraged and vicious bull. The animal belonged to Mr. Williams and as he had the day before attacked some women who narrowly escaped from his attacks Mr. Williams decided to put him in a stable. Accordingly he went to the lot Friday morning, unattended, to put him up. When in the stable lot the bull began to show his viciousness. He started at Mr. Williams, and on seeing him he began to run around the tree he kept out of reach of the infuriated bull's horns. At last Mr. Williams, fearing he could no longer elude the bull's intentions, started for the fence. The beast ran after the now thoroughly frightened man. Thinking that the fence was too far for him to safely reach Mr. Williams attempted then to return to the tree. But he could do so the bull overtook him and hurling him to the ground thrust his horns again and again into the prostrate man's bowels, and finally kneeling upon his chest sought to crush him. The last spark of life a little dog belonging to an employee of Mr. Williams was the sole spectator of the horrible affair. During its progress he had been biting and barking at the bull, to no purpose, however, until Mr. Williams had been prostrated and gored; then the bull took after the dog who easily avoided his onslaught. The brute then returned to Mr. Williams as if to renew his terrible work, but in a few moments he left him and walked to one side. The dog ran off to the field where his master was at work and by his barking and strange actions convinced the men that something was wrong. Unhitching his horse the man followed the dog to where Mr. Williams lay in the lot. He was alive but presented a most sickening and terrible sight. To the house he was taken, medical aid summoned and everything done to alleviate his sufferings. He was fully conscious to the last and died Monday morning. His friends in this vicinity were much shocked to hear of his demise under such a cruel and horrible circumstance.—Plainsdealer.

A Future For Mr. Hayes.

"It is certainly no discredit to Mr. Hayes," writes an esteemed correspondent, "that he was once a book peddler." No; on the contrary, the publication of this interesting fact shows that Mr. Hayes was at one time engaged in a respectable and honorable employment. Since those days, however, he has drawn the salary of an office to which he was never elected, and has derived a part of his income from the rental of Omaha real estate for a gin mill, and it has been alleged for still more disreputable purposes. We are frequently asked whether The Sun intends ever to "let up on Hayes," whether we are not willing to allow him to spend the remainder of his life in peace on his Fremont hen farm without constant reminders of the part which he bore in the events of 1876-80; whether nothing that he can do, or write, or say, in public or in private, is ever likely to win from The Sun a single word of kindness or even of toleration. We reply that if Mr. Hayes should confess the infamy of the crime whereof he was the chief beneficiary, and restore to the United States Treasury, with interest in full, the money which he obtained by fraud, we should regard his conduct with approval. This might make Mr. Hayes a poor man again. It might compel him to go to work at something besides chicken raising for the support of himself and family. But what a gain for him in the esteem of the community! He would then be a man with a future. Everybody would lend him a helping hand. Everybody would have a kind word for him in his struggles back to respectability. He might even rise once more to his old vocation of book agent. We are sure that Mr. Hayes could earn a good deal of money, and earn it honestly, by going from house to house through the country selling some standard publication—say Mr. A. M. Gibson's valuable historical work, "A Political Crime, or the History of the Great Fraud.—N. Y. Sun.

A Touching Lament.

Every Republican Convention recently held, denounced the exercise of the veto power by the President. This is in accordance with an inherent tendency of the party to scatter the public money on general principles, and to oppose whatever tends to check a lavish outflow from the national Treasury. It will be observed that Mr. J. P. Upton, in addressing the Sedalia Convention, denounced the President for vetoing "more bills than all the patriots and statesmen who sat in the Presidential chair before him." No reference is made to specific vetoes that are wrong and indefensible; the wrath of the speaker is leveled at the simple use of the veto power. Extravagance was one of the sins for which the Republican power was arraigned and defeated. Republican Congress passed too many bills that should have been vetoed and Republican Presidents made too little use of the veto power in guarding the Nation's money. Two Republican conventions are simply putting themselves on record as favoring a return to the old ways of extravagance and recklessness. The haunting memory of abundant boodle stirs the wrath of the once dominant party, and it is natural that its faithful adherents are clamorous in denouncing the present order of things when they meet in convention and eagerly nominate on the cruel fortune which has cut them off from their old base of supplies. Conventions and individuals emit the most indignant eloquence when their commissariat is invaded.—Post-Dispatch.

Great St. Louis Fair Programme.

The 26th Great St. Louis Fair opens Oct. 4th, and continues 6 days. $75,000 is offered in cash premiums, to be distributed among the exhibitors of horses, Cattle, Sheep, Swine and Poultry; Machinery, Mechanical and Industrial Displays; Works of Art, Textile Fabrics, Produce, fruits and vegetables, Geological and Chemical Specimens. The collection of Wild Beasts, Birds and Reptiles on the grounds of the Association compares favorably with any Zoological Garden in the world, and will be opened free to all visitors to the Fair. Numerous additions have been made to this Department, and it is now complete in all its details. Sixty-five acres have been added to the Ground, and $500,000 expended in improvements, comprising a full mile race course, 700 new Horse Stalls, 500 new Cattle Stalls, 800 Sheep and Swine Pens, a Poultry House for 3,000 Fowl, twenty-eight new Exhibition Halls and Pavilions. Application for Stalls or Pens should be made at once.

Races will take place every day on the New Mile Race Course, the horses contending being the most celebrated in the country. During the entire week the streets of the city will be illuminated by 500,000 gas jets, intermingled with hundreds of calcium, incandescent and are electric lights.

On the night of the Tuesday, October 5th, the grand annual nocturnal pageant of the "VEILED PROPHET," comprising 35 floats, will be given, at an expense of thousands of dollars. All Railroad and Steamboat Companies have generously made a rate of one fare for the round trip during the entire week.

The municipal authorities have agreed to declare Thursday of Fair Week a holiday to all. Rooms and board for 250,000 guests have been provided for, at greatly reduced rates.

The Merchants', Cotton, Wool, Mechanics' and Real Estate exchanges, will be open free to all visitors. By special arrangements with the St. Louis Fair, any of our subscribers will receive a copy of the premium list and programme, free of charge, by addressing Festus B. Wade, 708 Chestnut Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Rescued From the Grave.

My wife for many years was afflicted with a blood disease which baffled the most skillful treatment, and finally resulted in a very large ulcerated and ugly looking running sore on one of her limbs, which had been growing larger and larger for the last four years, discharging quantities of pus or matter, and was so rapidly undermining her health that I almost despaired of effecting a cure. I tried every known remedy, such as sarsaparilla and potash mixtures and prescriptions of the best physicians, with no benefit in any way. A few months ago my attention was called to S. S. S. I procured some of this medicine, which she began to take, and in a short time increased in flesh and strength, and the sore which was then larger than my hand and reached to the bone, began to heal. After continuing its use a few weeks, she regained her health and spirits, and the sore was entirely healed. She had been in such a terrible condition for years, and was so near death's door at the time she commenced the S. S. S., that I refrained from making the facts known to the public. Though knowing or being satisfied that she was cured, I feared the disease might return; but as it has now been three months since she stopped using the medicine, and is in perfect health, being able to walk several miles without unusual fatigue, and attends to household duties as she did before she was so afflicted, I publicly make this statement for the benefit of all who are afflicted as was my wife.
